

Cognitive Functions

Cognitive functions are the technical term for “Modes of processing information and making decisions based on your Myers-Briggs type.” Each type has four (out of a possible eight) cognitive functions, which they use in a specific order. Identifying which functions you use – and in what order – is the most accurate way to type yourself or anyone else.

ENTP Functions

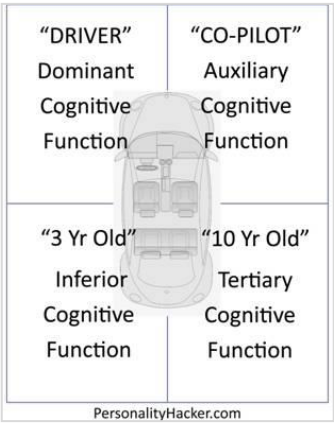

ENTP Primary Processes

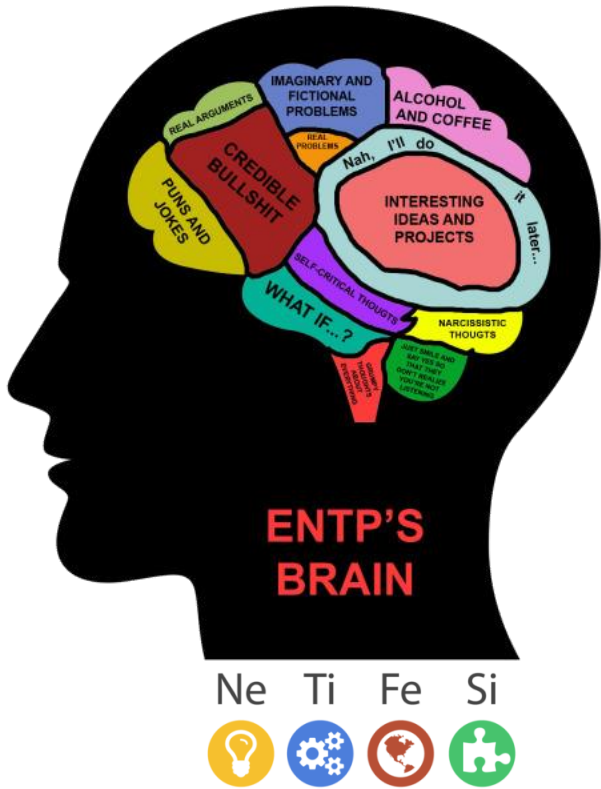

Role	Process	Snapshot
Leading “Driver”	Extroverted iNtuition	Interpreting situations and relationships and pickup meanings and interconnections to other contexts
Supportive “Co-Pilot”	Introverted Thinking	Analysing, categorising, and evaluating according to principles
Relief “10 year old”	Extroverted Feeling	Connecting and considering others and the group
Aspirational “3 year old”	Introverted Sensing	Reviewing and recalling past experiences and seeking detailed data

The analogy of a car is a useful model when thinking about cognitive functions. The first function is the 'driver' of the personality type and is the function from which perspective of all of the other functions follow. It provides the direction and speed. The second function is the 'co-pilot', which navigates around or through any difficulties encountered. The inferior, or 3 year old, function attempts to distract both primary and secondary functions whereas the tertiary function, or '10 year old', only distracts the current dominant function.

Understanding cognitive functions is imperative to understanding type. The four-letter dichotomies cannot possibly explain the complexity of our personalities – we are all thinkers, feelers, sensors and intuitives in various situations. The cognitive functions allow us to understand when we use each function and how it impacts our decision-making process.

The Cognitive Functions

Role	Process	Snapshot
Ne	Extroverted Intuition	How do concepts happen outside me?
Ni	Introverted Intuition	How do concepts happen within me?
Fe	Extroverted Feeling	How does this make others feel?
Fi	Introverted Feeling	Experiencing and acting in the immediate context.
Te	Extroverted Thinking	How does this logically affect things?
Ti	Introverted Thinking	How does this logically affect me?
Se	Extroverted Sensing	How is the environment outside me?
Si	Introverted Sensing	How is the environment inside me?

CONCLUSION

ENTP Originators see life as a puzzle or a chess board where they need to make all the pieces fit together. They are deeply curious, inventive and enthusiastic.

Their greatest contribution is their ability to pursue and succeed at any risk-taking venture.

What is MBTI?

Myers-Briggs Type Indicator (MBTI) is a tool that helps people gain insights about themselves and how they interact with others—and improve how they communicate, learn, and work.

Often referred to as a 'personality test', MBTI actually has less to do with one's personality and everything to do with how their brain works from receiving and processing external information to communication preferences. These preferences are split into four pairs – I/E, S/N, F/T and J/P. Though everyone is unique and will have some traits of all 8 letters, people will often be more inclined towards one letter in each pair. By determining your preference in each group, and putting these four letters together, you get your personality type code – for you, this is ENTP.

ENTP – The Visionary

What does that mean?

Extroverted	Energised by time with others
iNtuition	Focus on ideas and concepts
Thinking	Prioritises logic and reason
Perceiving	Prefers freedom and flexibility

ENTPs are inspired innovators, motivated to find new solutions to intellectually challenging problems. They are curious and clever, and seek to comprehend the people, systems, and principles that surround them. Open-minded and unconventional, Visionaries want to analyse, understand, and influence other people.

The ENTP personality type is the ultimate devil's advocate, thriving on the process of shredding arguments and beliefs and letting the ribbons drift in the wind for all to see. Unlike their more determined Judging (J) counterparts, ENTPs don't do this because they are trying to achieve some deeper purpose or strategic goal, but for the simple reason that it's fun. No one loves the process of mental sparring more than ENTPs, as it gives them a chance to exercise their effortlessly quick wit, broad accumulated knowledge base, and capacity for connecting disparate ideas to prove their points.

While the ENTP enjoys challenging others, in the end they are usually happy to live and let live. They are rarely judgmental, but they may have little patience for people who can't keep up.

ENTPs are energised by challenge and are often inspired by a problem that others perceive as impossible to solve. They are confident in their ability to think creatively, and may assume that others are too tied to tradition to see a new way. The Visionary relies on their ingenuity to deal with the world around them, and rarely finds preparation necessary. They will often jump into a new situation and trust themselves to adapt as they go.

Strengths

- Knowledgeable – ENTPs rarely pass up a good opportunity to learn something new, especially abstract concepts..
- Quick Thinkers – ENTPs have tremendously flexible minds, and are able to shift from idea to idea without effort, drawing on their accumulated knowledge to prove their points, or their opponents', as they see fit.
- Original –ENTPs are able to discard existing systems and methods and pull together disparate ideas from their extensive knowledge base, with a little raw creativity to hold them together, to formulate bold new ideas.
- Excellent Brainstormers – Nothing is quite as enjoyable to ENTPs as analysing problems from every angle to find the best solutions.
- Charismatic – People with the ENTP personality type have a way with words and wit that others find intriguing.
- Energetic – When given a chance to combine these traits to examine an interesting problem, ENTPs can be truly impressive in their enthusiasm and energy, having no qualms with putting in long days and nights to find a solution.

Weaknesses

- Very Argumentative – If there's anything ENTPs enjoy, it's the mental exercise of debating an idea, and nothing is sacred.
- Insensitive – Being so rational, ENTPs often misjudge others feelings and push their debates well past others' tolerance levels.
- Intolerant – Unless people are able to back up their ideas in a round of mental sparring, ENTPs are likely to dismiss not just the ideas but the people themselves.
- Can Find It Difficult to Focus – Boredom comes too easily for ENTPs, and fresh thoughts are the solution, though not always a helpful one.
- Dislike Practical Matters –When it comes to hard details and day-to-day execution where creative flair isn't just unnecessary but actually counter-productive, ENTP personalities lose interest, often with the consequence of their plans never seeing the light of day.

Recognising the ENTP

ENTPs are typically friendly and often charming. They usually want to be seen as clever and may try to impress others with their quick wit and incisive humor. They are curious about the world around them, and want to know how things work. However, for the ENTP, the rules of the universe are made to be broken. They like to find the loopholes and figure out how they can work the system to their advantage. This is not to say the Visionary is malicious: they simply find rules limiting, and believe there is probably a better, faster, or more interesting way to do things that hasn't been thought of before.

The ENTP is characteristically entrepreneurial and may be quick to share a new business idea or invention. They are confident and creative, and typically excited to discuss their many ingenious ideas. The ENTP's enthusiasm for innovation is infectious, and they are often good at getting other people on board with their schemes. However, they are fundamentally "big-picture" people, and may be at a loss when it comes to recalling or describing details. They are typically more excited about exploring a concept than they are about making it reality, and can seem unreliable if they don't follow through with their many ideas.

Career

ENTPs appreciate the synergy created when people work together and share ideas and talents. They value fairness and consistency. They are great coaches who are driven to help others make their projects bigger, better and more impactful. They appreciate openness and value honesty in their colleagues. ENTPs are quintessential entrepreneurs.

As subordinates: ENTPs are comfortable challenging their managers' ideas and have a strong (and well-expressed) dislike for restrictive rules and guidelines. ENTPs back this unorthodox behaviour with their keen minds and curiosity. If something can be done better, it's as simple as that, and ENTP personalities gladly take criticism, so long as it's logical and performance-oriented.

As colleagues: ENTPs prove most polarising, as their passions for brainstorming, debate and over-analysis drive more practical, task-oriented colleagues crazy, but serve as stimulating inspiration for those who appreciate the innovation ENTPs bring. ENTPs strive for honest, direct and objective assessments of these ideas, so much so that they often earn reputations for their insensitivity and condescension.

As managers: Management is often where ENTPs are most at home, allowing them the freedom to fiddle with different approaches and innovative ways to tackle new challenges without having to handle the tedious step-by-step implementation of these plans. ENTPs are open-minded and flexible managers, great at accurately and objectively assessing which plan is likely to be most effective.

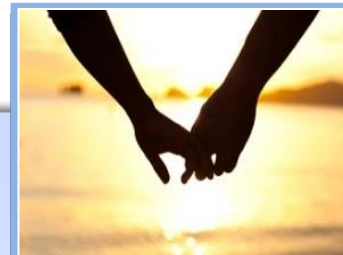

Career Matches

- Engineer
- Computer Analyst
- Computer Programmer
- Entrepreneur
- Inventor
- Journalist
- Lawyer/Attorney
- Marketer
- Politician
- Psychiatrist
- Psychologist
- Consultant
- Scientist
- Systems Analyst
- Writer
- Photographer
- Sales Agent
- Comedian
- Actor/Actress
- Musician

Popular ENTP hobbies

- Continuing education
- Writing
- Art appreciation
- Playing sports
- Computers and video games
- Travel

Relationships

ENTPs' growth is key, and even before they've found a dating partner, they imagine all the ways that they can experience new things together, to grow in tandem. This can be an overwhelming process if their partner doesn't match up, but when ENTPs find someone who shares their love of intellectual exploration, watch out.

Loyalty, support, emotional feedback – these are not what ENTPs look for in their friendships. The last thing people with the ENTP personality type want to hear is "you're right", not unless they have absolutely earned the distinction in a heated round of intellectual debate. If they're wrong, ENTPs want to be told so, and they want every detail of the faults in their logic to be laid bare, partly in their quest for oftentimes arbitrary truth, and partly just so they have to work to defend that logic with counterpoint and parry.

Kindred spirits:

INTP, ENTJ, ENFP

Intriguing differences:

INTJ, INFP, ESTP, ENFJ

ISTJ, ISFP, ISFJ and ESFJ personalities can clash and conflict with the ENTP, but may also offer the best opportunities for growth. With fundamentally different values and motivations, their strengths are the ENTP's weaknesses, and if they are able to develop a relationship, they can learn a tremendous amount from each other.

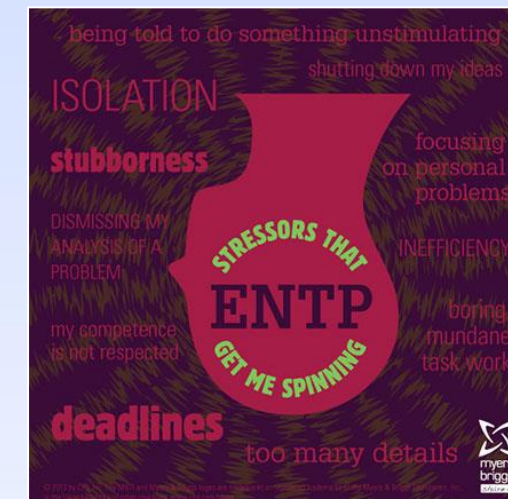

Burnout

ENTPs often find themselves interested in many different things, but sometimes this can actually overwhelm them. They have a fear of missing out, which can cause them to never truly stick to one project or hobby. ENTPs need to be able to focus on something they enjoy eventually, or they will likely become exhausted by this constant need to keep moving.

Constantly bouncing around, might end up causing the ENTP to remain stagnant and unable to move forward. The normally enthusiastic ENTP will become disinterested, and inactive. In order to pull out of this state, they need to push themselves to focus on one of their passions. Just pushing through the stagnancy and forcing themselves to stick with something, can often help the ENTP see the benefits of such a decision. Sometimes shaking up their surroundings is great too, and if the ENTP is in too deep of a rut, making a move to a different city might change their perspective.

ENTP Stressors

Change

ENTPs often find themselves making intentional changes in their lives, in order to keep things interesting. They enjoy being able to explore new possibilities and avenues for gaining knowledge and understanding. They love being able to take chances in life and enjoy the freedom that change can offer. ENTPs are very good at going with the flow, often finding themselves unafraid of change. They take life as it comes, finding themselves intrigued by whatever new possibilities that change can offer them. They are always willing to dive into something new and absorb as much knowledge as possible. More than anything the ENTP fears staying stagnant, disliking when things become too mundane.

Famous ENTPs

- Alfred, Lord Tennyson, Poet
- Alexander the Great, King, Military Commander
- Sir Walter Raleigh, Writer, Poet, Explorer
- Thomas Edison, Inventor
- Alfred Hitchcock, Filmmaker
- Tom Hanks, Actor
- Walt Disney, Filmmaker, Entrepreneur
- Nikola Tesla, Inventor, Physicist, Engineer
- Theodore Roosevelt, American President

Fictional ENTPs

- Emmett "Doc" Brown, Back to the Future
- Q, James Bond
- Bugs Bunny, Looney Tunes
- Wile E. Coyote, Road Runner (Looney Tunes)
- Tom Sawyer, The Adventures of Tom Sawyer
- Q, Star Trek: TNG

Your character matches:

Game of Thrones:

Tyrion Lannister
Master of Coin

Disney:

Esmeralda
The Hunchback of Notre Dame

Hiro Hamada
Big Hero 6

What makes ENTPs happy?

- In depth debates with intelligent people.
- Banter back and forth without the others becoming offended.
- Exploring all the new possibilities that the world has to offer.
- Trying something completely fresh and new.
- Meeting new people who share similar interests.
- People who appreciate their unique brand of humour, and who will laugh at their jokes sincerely.
- Winning.
- Randomness.
- Sarcasm.

