

Cognitive Functions

Cognitive functions are the technical term for “Modes of processing information and making decisions based on your Myers-Briggs type.” Each type has four (out of a possible eight) cognitive functions, which they use in a specific order. Identifying which functions you use – and in what order – is the most accurate way to type yourself or anyone else.

ISTP Functions

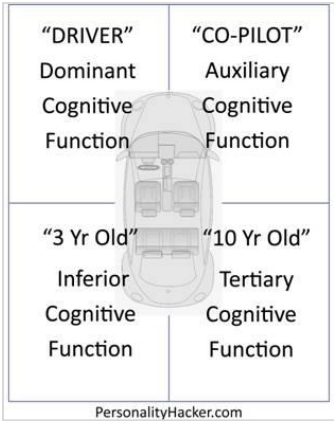

ISTP Primary Processes

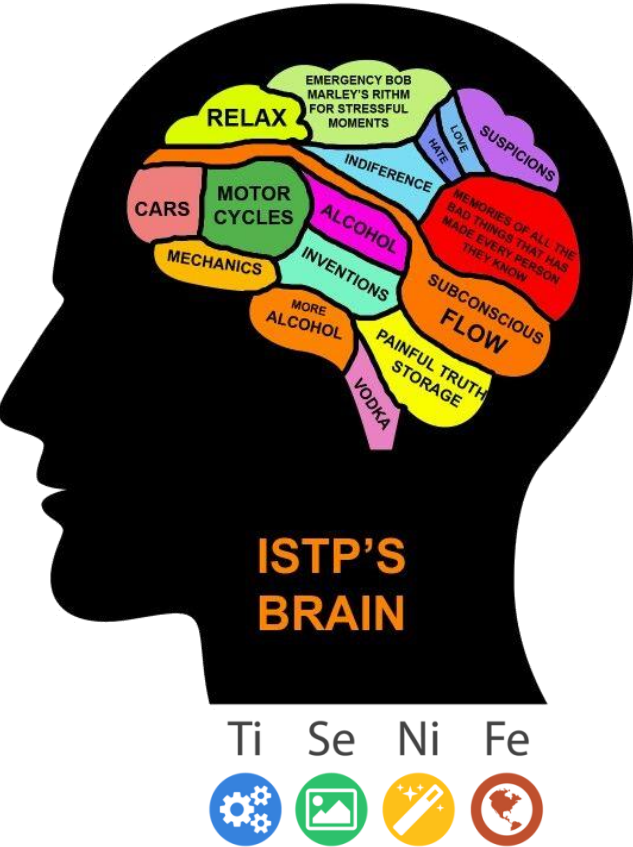

Role	Process	Snapshot
Leading “Driver”	Introverted Thinking	Analysing, categorising, and evaluating according to principles
Supportive “Co-Pilot”	Extroverted Sensing	Experiencing and acting in the immediate context
Relief “10 year old”	Introverted iNtuition	Foreseeing implications, transformations, and likely effects
Aspirational “3 year old”	Extroverted Feeling	Connecting and considering others and the group

The analogy of a car is a useful model when thinking about cognitive functions. The first function is the 'driver' of the personality type and is the function from which perspective of all of the other functions follow. It provides the direction and speed. The second function is the 'co-pilot', which navigates around or through any difficulties encountered. The inferior, or 3 year old, function attempts to distract both primary and secondary functions whereas the tertiary function, or '10 year old', only distracts the current dominant function.

Understanding cognitive functions is imperative to understanding type. The four-letter dichotomies cannot possibly explain the complexity of our personalities – we are all thinkers, feelers, sensors and intuitives in various situations. The cognitive functions allow us to understand when we use each function and how it impacts our decision-making process.

The Cognitive Functions

Role	Process	Snapshot
Ne	Extroverted Intuition	How do concepts happen outside me?
Ni	Introverted Intuition	How do concepts happen within me?
Fe	Extroverted Feeling	How does this make others feel?
Fi	Introverted Feeling	Experiencing and acting in the immediate context.
Te	Extroverted Thinking	How does this logically affect things?
Ti	Introverted Thinking	How does this logically affect me?
Se	Extroverted Sensing	How is the environment outside me?
Si	Introverted Sensing	How is the environment inside me?

CONCLUSION:

ISTP Craftsmen love to master a skill and are gifted with their hands.

Their greatest contribution is their ability to get things done and problem-solve.

What is MBTI?

Myers-Briggs Type Indicator (MBTI) is a tool that helps people gain insights about themselves and how they interact with others—and improve how they communicate, learn, and work.

Often referred to as a 'personality test', MBTI actually has less to do with one's personality and everything to do with how their brain works from receiving and processing external information to communication preferences. These preferences are split into four pairs – I/E, S/N, F/T and J/P. Though everyone is unique and will have some traits of all 8 letters, people will often be more inclined towards one letter in each pair. By determining your preference in each group, and putting these four letters together, you get your personality type code – for you, this is ISTP.

ISTP – The Craftsman
What does that mean?

- Introverted Energised by quiet time alone
- Sensing Pays attention to facts and details
- Thinking Prioritises logic and reason
- Perceiving Prefers freedom and flexibility

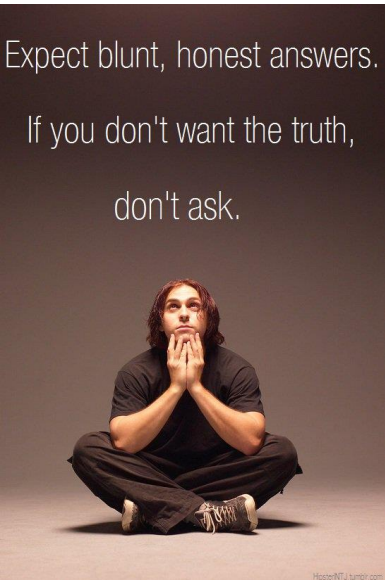

ISTP Craftsmen are adventurous and independent. They are fearless and thrive on challenging situations, and are gifted problem solvers. Their mechanical and technical nature enables them to operate many kinds of tools and instruments. Proud of their relatively effortless ability to acquire many skills, they seek freedom and are typically unemotional.

ISTPs are observant artisans with an understanding of mechanics and an interest in troubleshooting. They approach their environments with a flexible logic, looking for practical solutions to the problems at hand. They are independent and adaptable, and typically interact with the world around them in a self-directed, spontaneous manner.

Attentive to details and responsive to the demands of the world around them, their astute sense of their environment makes them good at moving quickly and responding to emergencies.

ISTPs are reserved, but not withdrawn, enjoy taking action, and approach the world with a keen appreciation for the physical and sensory experiences it has to offer.

ISTPs love to explore with their hands and their eyes, touching and examining the world around them with cool rationalism and spirited curiosity. They are natural Makers, moving from project to project, building the useful and the superfluous for the fun of it, and learning from their environment as they go. Often mechanics and engineers, ISTPs find no greater joy than in getting their hands dirty pulling things apart and putting them back together, just a little bit better than they were before.

Strengths

- Optimistic and Energetic – Cheerful and good-natured, ISTPs (especially Assertive ones) rarely get stressed out, preferring to go with the flow.
- Creative and Practical – ISTPs are very imaginative when it comes to practical things, mechanics, and crafts. Novel ideas come easily, and they love using their hands to put them into action.
- Spontaneous and Rational – Combining spontaneity with logic, ISTPs can switch mind-sets to fit new situations with little effort, making them flexible and versatile individuals.
- Know How to Prioritise – ISTPs are able to store their spontaneity for a rainy day, releasing their energy just when it's needed most.
- Great in a Crisis – ISTPs are naturals in crisis situations. They usually enjoy a little physical risk, and they aren't afraid to get their hands dirty when the situation calls for it.
- Relaxed – Through all this, ISTPs are able to stay quite relaxed. They live in the moment and go with the flow, refusing to worry too much about the future.

Weaknesses

- Stubborn – If someone tries to change ISTPs' habits, lifestyle or ideas through criticism, they can become quite blunt in their irritation.
- Insensitive – ISTPs use logic, and even when they try to meet others halfway with empathy and emotional sensitivity, it rarely seems to quite come out right.
- Private and Reserved – Notoriously difficult to get to know, ISTPs are true introverts, keeping their personal matters to themselves, and often just prefer silence to small talk.
- Easily Bored – ISTPs enjoy novelty; once something is understood, ISTPs tend to simply move on to something new and more interesting.
- Dislike Commitment – Long-term commitments are particularly onerous for ISTPs. They prefer to take things day-by-day.
- Risky Behaviour – ISTPs have been known to escalate conflict and danger just to see where it goes, something that can have disastrous consequences for everyone around if they lose control of the situation.

ISTPs are good with their hands and often mechanical. They are typically attracted to hands-on hobbies like woodworking or crafts, and may be found tinkering with bicycles, computers, cars, or household appliances. They often have an intuitive understanding of machines and a remarkable ability to fix things. ISTPs have an appreciation for risk and action, and often enjoy thrilling leisure activities like extreme sports, motorcycling, or weaponry.

SORRY FOR THE MEAN, AWFUL,
ACCURATE THINGS
I SAID.

As managers: ISTP managers treat their subordinates as they'd like to be treated: with minimal talking and loose boundaries. ISTPs aren't big on chattiness or emotional expression – effusive praise and back-slapping just isn't in ISTPs' nature. But when problems do arise, they are great listeners who devise practical, fair, and impartial solutions.

Romantic relationships with ISTPs are a tango, complex and interesting, with alternating coldness and detachment, and passion, spontaneity and enjoyment of the moment. Nothing can be forced in ISTP relationships, but if given the space they need to be themselves, they will gladly enjoy the comforts of a steady partner for a lifetime.

INFP, INFJ, ENFP and ENFJ personalities can clash and conflict with the ISTP, but may also offer the best opportunities for growth. With fundamentally different values and motivations, their strengths are the ISTP's weaknesses, and if they are able to develop a relationship, they can learn a tremendous amount from each other.

ISTPs need to be allowed to spend time by themselves, and often become exhausted by social situations. When they are suffering from a burn out, they need to take some time to regroup. Their loved ones also need to allow this to happen- so that the ISTP can analyse what went wrong to get them to this stressful point.

STRESSORS THAT ISTEP GET ME SPINNING

ISTPs often thrive on changes in their environments. They despise living a stagnant life that has no opportunity for learning. ISTPs enjoy excitement and actually thrive on the chance to explore the unknown. Any kind of thrill or intense experience, is actually enjoyable for the ISTP. Because of their ability to adapt and see the excitement in new experiences, ISTPs often welcome change. They are very good at coping with negative aspects of life, finding new ways to navigate any situation. Change often gives the ISTP that thrill that they are seeking in life.
